Pressured to deliver articles you don't have?

Try ISI's oats

If your library is like most, you have a continuing need to deliver articles to patrons from journals that are not part of your collection. Getting them through interlibrary loans or writing for reprints can take considerable time, energy, and money. But there is a faster, better way of getting those important journal articles — ISI's OATS (Original Article Tear Sheet) service.

Get articles from 6,500 journals — fast!

Through OATS you can obtain articles from over 6,500 journals covered by ISI information tools in the past two years. In most cases you get tear sheets actually cut out of the journals in which they appeared — especially important when you want an article because of its illustrations, color plates, or graphs. And you get them fast. Most articles are on their way back to you within 24 hours after ISI receives your order. If mailing your order will take too much time, you can telephone or telex and your article will be mailed the following day. You can even order articles through OATS while searching online files through Lockheed Information Systems and Systems Development Corporation, for next-day shipment.

No copyright problems.

And when you use OATS you don't have to worry about the new copyright laws. OATS pays the royalties direct to the publishers. So your administrative workload is reduced and you avoid possible legal problems.

And the cost is right.

All of this is available for a surprisingly low cost, with the price of an article starting at $5.50. If you need large numbers of articles on a regular basis, deposit account or monthly billing arrangements can be made that make OATS even easier to use.

Send today for our free brochure giving more details about OATS and an order card so you can put OATS to work right away relieving your article delivery problems.
